Joke of the Week

A salesman runs out of gas on a county road and goes to nearby farmhouse seeking food and shelter. The farmer answers the door and invites the man to dinner.

At the table sits the farmer, his wife, two kids, and a pig. The pig has a wooden leg, plus gold, silver and bronze medals around his neck.

"I can't help but notice the pig," the salesman said. "What's with the medals?"

"Last week he ran off a coyote, saving the hens. I gave him a bronze," the farmer said.

"The next night he bit a burglar trying to break in. I gave him a silver," he said.

"The next night the house caught on fire. The pig woke us up and carried little Timmy here to safety. I gave him the gold."

The salesman nodded. "That's amazing. But what about the wooden leg?"

"Well," the farmer said, "A pig like that you don't eat all at once."
